

The contribution of intercontinental travel on the resilience and stability of the gut microbiota

Jiyang Chan^A, Niels van Best^{A, B}, Christel Driessen^A, the COMBAT-consortium^C, and John Penders^A

^A Institute of Nutrition and Translational Research in Metabolism (NUTRIM), Department of Medical Microbiology, Infectious diseases and Infection prevention, Maastricht University Medical Centre, Maastricht, the Netherlands
^B Institute of Medical Microbiology, RWTH University Hospital Aachen, Aachen, Germany
^C COMBAT-consortium members: Maris Arcilla, Perry JJ van Genderen, Jarne M. van Hattem, Damian C. Melles, Menno D. de Jong, Constance Schultsz, Martin C.J. Bootsma, Abraham Goorhuis, Martin Grobusch, Nicky Molhoek, Astrid M.L. Oude Lashof, Ellen E. Stobberingh and Henri A. Verbrugh

Effect of travel on the gut microbiota

Larger daily fluctuations during travel

